

THE WRITE TURN®

Professional Development Seminar

Saturday, Oct 12, 2019

9:00 a.m. - 1:00 p.m.

University of the District of Columbia

4200 Connecticut Ave., N.W., Building 44, Room A03

Washington, DC 20016

The Write Turn's evidence-based strategies and instructional methods provide educators with the tools they need to help their students become more proficient writers. This one-day seminar provides:

- Explicit strategy instruction for revising and self-regulation (The FIX Strategy)
- Explicit strategy instruction for brainstorming and categorizing ideas
- Explicit strategy instruction for annotating text and using annotations in essays
- Mnemonics and graphic organizers that help students transform their ideas into detailed sentences and paragraphs
- Hands-on training and worksheets for every genre (narrative, explanatory, persuasive and informative)
- Detailed lesson plans that meet the Common Core State Standards and guide students through the writing process
- Student workbooks available for purchase
- Options for continued online material

The Write Turn® provides evidence-based strategies - including its research-based FIX Strategy for revising and self-regulation - to general education teachers, SPED teachers, SLPs, and tutors.

The FIX Strategy is a revising and self-regulation strategy developed by Cindy Sherman to help students make "meaningful changes" that improve the quality of their stories and essays.

Students consistently benefit from this explicit instruction as they learn to incorporate strategies into the writing process and generalize these strategies into the classroom curriculum.

Cost for a 1-day session → $145.00

(includes teacher's manual, student workbook, and FIX strategy cards)
